Filipinos and Filipino Americans have a long unrecognized history in the struggle for economic justice. Our contributions are slowly coming to the fore. From the fields of central valley to the halls of public institutions to the operating rooms of our major hospitals, Filipinos are slowly participating for economic empowerment through their labor unions. Campaigns include working with the farm workers, with health care workers and public employees. Panelists include: John Delloro, of the Asian Pacific American Labor Alliance; Aquillana Soriano- Versoza, of the Pilipino Workers Center; and Jay Valencia and Gerry Villero of the SEIU 399 and SEIU 535.
